Deadly dioxin found at DuPont

Tests show chemical in Agent Orange present at plant

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

DuPont DeLisle officials confirmed Thursday that testing at the plant had detected the presence of the compound 2,3,7,8 TCDD, chemically known as tetrachlorodiben-zoparadioxin, the most hazardous of all dioxin compounds. Many people became familiar with the compound as a component in Agent Orange, used as a defoliant during the Vietnam War. The plant produces the white pigment TiO<sub>2</sub>, titanium dioxide. A notice was issued with paychecks to employees on Thursday advising them of the discovery.

The TCDD was found after a judge ordered the plant to allow plaintiff's attorneys on site to collect samples for testing. Kathleen Smiley and a

Supers to review tax assessment grievance

Public hearing set on property appraisal

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

When reappraisals got under way in the county a couple of years ago, scores of property owners swarmed the tax office to protest the assessed valuations. Property had not been reassessed in many years and values had skyrocketed. Now, with the county on a more regular appraisal schedule the stream of unhappy property owners has slowed to a standstill, except for one.

On Wednesday at 1 p.m. supervisors will hear an appeal from Bay Park Properties. The corporation will ask supervisors to slash the valuation of their property by close to fifty percent, said tax assessor Jimmie Ladner.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

30 years of Stennis

As the old saying goes, "There has been a lot of water under the bridge" since the first Space Shuttle engine was tested here in Hancock County.

It has been 30 years since the first shuttle engines were tested at the John C. Stennis Space Center. That in a way is a long time ago and lots of things have happened since then.

Of course the test stands constructed in the early 1960s were modified to test the shuttle engines.

Like many folks with a little age, I can also recall when President Kennedy was killed when I was enroute to the Mississippi Test Facility (John C. Stennis Space Center), to set up a news rack at the Hancock Bank branch. Hancock Bank had a sparkling new trailer.

There were mountains of dirt and construction was all over the place. As I arrived at the test site, the car radio station I was tuned in broke into a song to make the announcement about President Kennedy.

I stopped by a group of workers and told one what was happening and before I knew it, my vehicle was circled by bewildered folks, just like I was.

The first Space Shuttle I was able to view up close up, within some 50 foot, was at the St. Louis, Missouri Airport, when I was attending a publishers meeting.

The Space Shuttle was being piggy-backed across the nation for Americans to see. This was prior to the space shuttle's first flight in 1981.

It so happened the hotel our convention was taking place bordered the St. Louis airport.

Yes I have witnessed over the years several of the engine tests at the local test site.

In the beginning one was placed in a bunker a good distance away.

Of course, we managed to hear many of the tests from our homes in this county too.

It was a great time too, for Space Shuttle Discovery's launch last month and return this month.

Yes, the engines were tested right here in Hancock County then too.

I realize it is a month away, but an important event is to take place on September 17, and that is the 17th annual Mississippi Coastal Cleanup.

This big cleanup is an annual event sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee.

Registrations are now underway for folks to volunteer to help with this great task. As you know, our county has rivers, bayous, canals, the Bay of St. Louis and the Mississippi Sound.

Your help will be greatly appreciated. To find more information, call the chamber at 467-9048.

Changing Amtrak's Culture

Traditionally I've supported Amtrak, though, at times, I've questioned my own reasoning for doing so. My misgivings always prompt me to ask questions like: How many more highway lanes can we widen? How many airport runways can we construct?

When you think long term, it's clear that to sustain our quality of life and economic growth, America needs a complete package of transportation options - roads, ports, runways and full-service rails, too. That's why I've introduced a sweeping Amtrak reform bill aimed, not just at keeping Amtrak trains running another year, but at improving rail passenger service and fundamentally changing Amtrak's culture.

From the Senate

By U.S. Sen. Trent Lott

Three-Pronged Approach: After talks with management, labor, interested Members of Congress, and virtually every group associated with Amtrak, the Senate Surface Transportation Committee, which I chair, introduced a bipartisan reform bill. The Passenger Rail Investment and Improvement Act has three themes. First, it will reform Amtrak, making it more accountable. Second, it will cut Amtrak's operating costs. Third, it will enable states to establish their own passenger rail service, if needed. In fact, this legislation aims to cut Amtrak's federal taxpayer subsidy by a whopping 40 percent so that Amtrak doesn't have to live from Congressional appropriation - paycheck to paycheck.

Reform and Accountability: Under current Amtrak Chairman David Gunn, Amtrak has improved dramatically, making major improvements to its management system, but Amtrak has yet to make the significant cultural change needed to operate less like a government bureaucracy and more like a business. My bill requires Amtrak to develop better financial systems and evaluate its operations objectively, requiring a five-year financial plan monitored by the Department of Transportation Inspector General.

The act sets new standards for cost recovery, on-

A MAN'S HOME IS HIS CASTLE

Contra-condo, anti-high density housing on Blue Meadow Road

Editor, I have long dreaded the development of High Density Housing since we built our HOME on undestroyed wetlands and facing wetlands as well as several stands of trees on the west side of Watts Bayou. What we like about the Bayou is our neighbors. We love the silence for we can hear our own thoughts after a hard day of work. We rejoice in the darkness that surrounds our home on three sides for we can see the stars (and the satellites). Darkness enables me to see light, to feel the difference and to know that it is night! We love the sounds of frogs, birds, the splash of some unknown critter in the water, and the way every little noise is magnified as if it were carried through silence directly to our ears. We love the birds and especially the Great Blue Herons that used to nest just across from us till their trees were recently removed. We love the Red Tipped Blackbirds that frequent the whole wetlands landscape, nesting in the marsh grass and assailing us with their lives for a long season. And our best neighbor is the boatyard, The Jourdan River Marina. There I get to see all kinds of boats coming and going and watch through binoculars the constant change of scenery. Because of the Boatyard you know that you are on the Sea and not some pond, that you are connected to the whole world by navigable water, that your love of the Sea is reflected back to you with every new arrival at the yard. What we love about the Bayou is the Bayou.

Regrettably we face the site of a recent rape of wetlands and the destruction of several stands of trees, where the Great Blue Herons used to live. Just beside that scar is the proposed site of a high density housing Condo development, the Jourdan River Marina. It is interesting to note that the so-called scar was an entirely illegal operation. It seems the custom among some developers is to rape the land, get caught, pay a small fine and go on with their plans, usually only modified with a corner of wetland preserved and perhaps some mitigation so the birds of central Mississippi will be pleased.

Only one letter per writer per month. The editor reserves the right to edit or reject letters. Letters of thanks, expressions of appreciation and political endorsements are inappropriate.

The boatyard, this bayou, the wetlands is both why I came to Coastal Mississippi and the reason I settled and built my home here. I also find the view of natural sites to be a reason for living. Some find a reason for living in making a profit. But there is no reason why our beauty preferences and their profit motive should be in a power struggle if the history, practice and values of this community were honored. Regrettably people who think boatyards ugly haven't been to sea and do not appreciate the lines of a well designed vessel. What to do?

I must mention that the incursion of massive numbers of people, that's what "high density housing" is, in comparison to the number of residents already here, would overpopulate the Bayou, disrupt its now stressed eco-balance, absolutely destroy the silence, eliminate the useful and comforting darkness, and make human noise the sound of the Bayou. Of course, there would also be "high density traffic" in the Bayou that would create navigational hazards, especially since Condoites often know nothing about boats, the sea and the rules of the road except how to buy the boat.

The proposed Condo development will disrupt a way of life, wreck a world-renowned "view" and disrupt "the reason for living" for many and thus is utterly time performance, ridership per mile, and route connectivity, as well as on-board and in-station services. In fact, the Federal Railroad Administration will publish a quarterly report on train performance and service quality.

The bill also promotes a greater role for the private sector, allowing private companies to bid on Amtrak routes. This allows states to become more involved in passenger rail, especially in areas that need more commuter service options.

Cost Cutting: To reduce Amtrak's federal subsidy by almost half, Amtrak must also restructure its routes and reform its food service. In addition, my bill will require Amtrak to eliminate subsidies for users of Amtrak facilities. That means taxpayers in Mississippi will not be required to pay for heavily-used Amtrak commuter routes in the Northeast Corridor. As I said earlier, this bill will empower states which have major commuter rail needs to get involved and help fulfill those needs. Regarding Amtrak's rural long-distance routes, my bill does not call for the elimination of any routes, but it does establish a mechanism for evaluating those routes' feasibility, and for the Department of Transportation to act accordingly if routes are not competitive.

Options for States: The bill doesn't require states to take over Amtrak's job. It simply creates a new rail capital grant program that states can use to start new inter-city passenger service. That puts commuter rail on a similar footing with highways and airports which have federal assistance programs for infrastructure, support Amtrak has never enjoyed. This will provide a more stable and predictable funding source for passenger rail. Bonding is a very important aspect of my reform proposal, and I've filed an amendment to the bill which contains new provisions for Amtrak bonding authority.

I don't expect Amtrak to operate identically to a private business, but it must opposed by me and all who live in the area. We built in a single family area because that is both what we are and what we wanted. Now someone's profit motive threatens to destroy our choices, our clear intentions and long established practice. Who will protect a way of life? Who will keep Florida in Florida? Who will stop this insanity of growth out of control? Is it developmental cancer? Will it be our elected and appointed officials?

I write timidly because I have no confidence that my and the whole town full of letters will make a difference in the plans of those seeking a profit. We've been "poor" so long we have become greedy. I think profit is wonderful, but it is not the sole rationale for decision making in land use, community development, or environmental design except by those who have only that one motive in life. For my part, I grieve my powerlessness. I yearn to keep what I struggled and planned to develop, and I accept the fact that I live in a culture that honors profit more than beauty. Oh! I think Condos can also be beautiful, in the right setting, perhaps a major city or a place where density is desirable, rewarding and not contrary to the culture and the current land use.

There is absolutely no way a High Density Condominium at the end of Blue Meadow Road will ever be a "better neighbor," as the developer stated in a public meeting. Besides, if you live next to a Condo, can you consider the residents "neighbors?" Some perhaps, but most might better be thought of as "tenants," as temporary visitors at best.

Supers have done us a dis-service with condominium zoning changes

In justifying their recent decision to rezone 1000 plus acres in the Bayou Caddy area, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors claim that this change is in accordance with the Hancock County Comprehensive Plan. Nothing could be further from reality. In fact, the zoning change to a commercial resort district is at odds with almost every sentiment expressed in the plan.

The Comprehensive Plan is a 20-year policy statement, issued in 1991, that sets policies for the county's future development. Preservation, diversification and control of growth were deemed necessary to avoid long term problems. Issues included finding the best possible uses for land within the county in order to prevent future problems, and the authors acknowledged that "long term benefits are forever in conflict with short term economic returns."

The Plan stipulates that "Hancock County's biggest environmental concern is its wetlands...development within true wetlands could create serious environmental problems which could effect future and existing development." It further states that critical wetlands areas should be zoned for the least intensive urban use or for a recreational use which would not harm the integrity of the wetland. Suggested urban uses included low density residential development. In fact, "A density of one single family unit for every ten acres is suggested."

The Plan acknowledges pro-growth sentiments, but insists that they must be metered with preservation of the county's existing historical sites, character and sense of community history.

Specifically, the Plan recommends the development of tourism as an industry, especially recreational and heritage tourism.

In December 2004, the U. S. Congress designated our six coastal counties the Mississippi Gulf Coast National Heritage Area, one of only 24 in the nation. These designations were created to assist local communities in preserving the resources mentioned above.

A DMR publication for the Mississippi National Heritage Area states that "current economic and development pressures on the southern six counties...enhance the sense of urgency for the designation of MGCNHA." Pointing out the area's "fragile nature", it asserts that access and promotion of cultural and natural resources is a low cost, low impact method of growing the economy and maintaining south Mississippi's unique and important identity.

Our designation as National Heritage Areas received broad support. National supporters included Senators Trent Lott, Thad Cochran and Congressmen Gene Taylor. Local and regional supporters included Lynn Bell of the Hancock County Planning and Zoning Commission; Representative J.P. Compretta; Hancock County Supervisors Lisa Cowand, Rocky Pullman and David Yarborough and former supervisor Jay Cuevas; and Hancock County Tax Assessor Jimmie Ladner. Members of the steering committee included Lisa Cowand, Mayor Favre, and Mayor Longo.

Several letters of support are included in the document, including one from Rocky Pullman, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. He stated that "We...strongly request our National Legislature and House of Representatives (sic) to support this issue."

Development plans within the newly rezoned area are in sharp contrast with both the Hancock County Comprehensive Plan and those of the National Heritage Area designation. Instead of preservation of natural resources and a sense of community, we have already been robbed of a grove of magnificent live oak trees near Bayou Caddy. Prehistoric Indian shell middens have been disturbed, and shrimpers who have made a living for generations in the area have been displaced. In their place are projected towering condos, resorts and casinos which under no circumstances can be seen as compatible with the character of our coast. The recommendations of the Comprehensive Plan and the National Heritage Area designation were developed to preserve the natural resources of the area, and to minimize long term potential problems associated with rapid urbanization. The gap between the recommendation of one single family unit for every ten acres and the proposed thousands of units along a one mile stretch of our beach is significant. In fact, it is almost as large as the gaps in reasoning and continuity between what the Hancock County Board of Supervisors found of value a very short time ago and what they are supporting today.

Hurricane Camille

36 years later,
monster storm
still remain

BY BENNIE
SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

On August 14, 1969, a rapidly formed tropical storm located in the Caribbean near Grand Cayman Island was noted. She was somewhat benign moving along at about 10 miles an hour and didn't reach hurricane intensity until the morning of August 15 when during that night she passed over the western tip of Cuba and into the Gulf of Mexico. Rocking along on a north-northwestern track at about the same forward speed the then named Hurricane Camille on the afternoon of August 16 stalled for several hours and intensified. During that night she moved forward still on north-northwest course and her winds in the center were estimated at 150 m. p. h.

On Sunday, August 17, an air force plane forced its way into the eye of the storm and found the central barometric pressure to be 26.61 inches. That represents the lowest barometric reading ever recorded on the western hemisphere by an air craft!

Now the eye of the storm crossed the Mississippi Gulf Coast near Waveland Mississippi at about 10:00 p.m. CDT Sunday evening August 17 and her winds had increased to about 200 m.p.h. She was howling! Dr Robert H. Simpson Chief of the National Hurricane Center in Miami said, "Basis of my experience and observation, I would conservatively estimate the winds ranged at or about 200 miles an hour. This is on the threshold of tornado intensity."

High tides resulted. Tide gauges and records were destroyed. It was necessary to get tide stages from high water marks. Static high tides, were taken at Mean Sea Level in Mobile, Alabama with 7.4 feet; Pascagoula 10 to 11 feet; Biloxi 15.5 to 20 feet; Gulfport 20 feet; Pass Christian 21.4 feet and Bay St. Louis 20 feet. The Army Engineers said waves on top of these static high tides were considerably higher and there has been sufficient evidence to verify the statement.

President of the United States Richard Nixon under Public Law 875, declared on August 18 the state of Mississippi a major disaster area and authorized 26 counties of the 82 to be eligible for Federal assistance under the President's Office of Emergency Preparedness. George Hastings of the President's office of E. P. was assigned to marshal the federal assistance and recovery effort in the stricken Gulf Coast region.

With un-excelled skill and knowhow the recovery program was organized, launched and under way. The U. S. Corps of Army Engineers moved in. Bay St. Louis was under Martial law. There was a strict curfew. Red Cross, Salvation Army and other humanitarian units moved in. There was a bee hive of activity in restoring communication, clearing debris, bringing in pure water, feeding the thousands, making homes for the homeless, giving inoculations treating the injured. Identifying and burying the dead. Fighting the fires. Evacuating the young and the old and the sick. And with rapid fire, decisions setting up operations to clear debris, restore public utilities, safe-guard health, protect the desolate.

Admittedly the Gulf Coast -- "gold coast" of only hours before had become a desolate center destruction never before known to the area. Ocean going vessels went aground, people died, businesses were damaged or destroyed. Communications were all but cut-off.

Processing plant damages were estimated at $8,000,000 loss. Off-shore drilling took a licking, 4,000 workers were without jobs in the industry alone, agriculture losses and dairy farmer losses were massive. Orchards of timber, pecan and tung suffered. Tourist industry was with an estimated $31,638,612 loss. Children were evacuated. 139 persons were known dead. Many unidentified or unaccounted for. 66,000 families suffered loss of property as reported to the Red Cross. 4,000,000 pounds of USDA foods were supplied. 14,000 families registered for assistance with the Red Cross. An estimated 110,000 insurance claims are anticipated! Loss

BY MRS. HAZEL LAFONT-RUSSO
Oh, Beast

Where are you that comes to devastate my land,
The sea looks so peaceful, but what does it hide - the monster that dwells deep inside.
Life plays so happily
on her sunny shores - children laughing and playing -
Then gives rise to hear the roar -
The monster wakes, fear abounds. The wind,
the waves, the terrible sounds.
It's coming - It's coming - the children scream -
Mothers and Dads running to and fro - Save my children - they asked no more.

Our home is gone
what will we do - help us Jesus this I pray - help us to see another day.
Bring back the sunshine - bring back the rain - but help us dear Jesus - to never see that monster again.

Camille -- 36th anniversary of Monster Storm

of personal and corporate tax to the general fund for the balance of 1969 estimated at $3,450,000. Not to mention sales tax losses, alcoholic beverage taxes, etc.

Thirty-six years later, people on the Mississippi Gulf Coast are still talking about Hurricane Camille. But even as devastating as the storm was to the area, time and distance tend to dim the memory of just how powerful a hurricane can be. And to many newcomers on the coast, the fury of Camille may seem little more than a story that some old-timers tell.

The men and women on the Hurricane Camille Memorial Committee want to make sure that people remember that the danger involved in such a storm is as real today as it was when Camille hit the coast on Aug. 17, 1969, bringing widespread death and destruction to Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties.

A memorial to the storm and to all those who lost their lives to its fury will be unveiled to a standing-room-only crowd in 2001 in Biloxi at the Church of the Redeemer at 610 East Beach Blvd. A black granite memorial wall listing the 131 dead and 41 missing Mississippians surrounds a mosaic mural created by Bay St. Louis artist Elizabeth Veglia. The structure also incorporates a fountain and the old bell tower of the church, a symbol of hope to many, who could hear its bell ringing through the frightful night of the storm.

Julia Cook Guice of Biloxi headed up the memorial committee. At the time the storm hit, she was the Civil Defense Director in Biloxi and her husband Wade was the CD Director in Harrison County. She remembers the storm well.

"We were in the office working and we stayed there for over a week — here was a lot to be done," Guice said. "The real fury of the storm was brought home to me when I saw the wind lifting the huge spans of the Ocean Springs/Biloxi Bridge. It was closed for weeks."

What made the recovery from the storm so hard was the widespread destruction, said Guice. In a small-scale disaster such as someone's house burning down, the rest of the community is still intact and can offer help. After Camille, there was nowhere to go for help.

"We were all touched by the storm and unable to help each other," she said. "We realized that we didn't even have containers to put fresh water in, everything was gone."

Bay St. Louis resident Susan Seal weathered the storm at her grandmother's home in Biloxi. She had gone there to evacuate her parents and her grandmother, but they had weathered the 1947 storm and thought that nothing could be that bad. They refused to leave.

"So I felt like I should stay with them," said Seal. "The wind sounded like a freight train."

Their raised house sat on a bluff, ironically, just two doors down from the site of the memorial, the bottom floor 32 feet above sea level, said Seal. Even so, water seeped into the house.

The house next door washed away, she said, and a large shrimp boat lodged in the yard against a tree.

"The tree kept it from floating into our house," she said. "The steps to the house washed away. We waited for two days 'til the fire department came and rescued us. There were snakes and wild boars everywhere, trying to escape the water, I guess."

Her mother and father's house in Long Beach had only two walls standing after the storm. The house on Beach Blvd. in Bay St. Louis where Seal lives now belonged to her husband's parents. It stands on a 30-ft. bluff. There was no water in the house, said Seal, but water covered the yard. The wind blew an oak tree through windows into one of the rooms.

Elizabeth Veglia lived in Pass Christian at the time of the storm. She decided to evacuate, and when she returned home, all that was left of her beach-front condominium was the foundation. She searched for a block and a half or so around the property, she said, and found her barbecue pit with one leg missing and a couple of pictures — all that was left of her life up until then.

502 South Beach Blvd. in Bay St. Louis, after the devastation of Hurricane Camille.

"Everything was gone," said Veglia. "There was nowhere to work. I stayed for awhile with my grandmother in New Orleans, then decided to go to Tennessee where I had some friends. Later I worked for a while in Houston, and then in El Paso, and finally decided to come back here and try to pick up the pieces."

Veglia spent about a year working on the mural in her home, assisted by her helper Mary Wager, and another two weeks on finishing touches after it was installed at the site. The 14-ft. diameter mural consists of five main panels and a number of smaller ones. Veglia said she studied a satellite image of a hurricane to help her get started.

"I tried to depict the powerful flow of the clouds and the winds as they came from the center of the storm," said Veglia. "The mural is mainly colors of blacks, blues, and whites, with small flecks of primary colors to give the image its energy. Because of the large scale I had to just feel my way through."

Watch -- Coastal Community group

informed about local issues, she also began to envision her quiet and laid back lifestyle coming to a sudden end. The Planning and Zoning Board had established a new Commercial Resort District that would allow unrestricted height and density developments.

Gordon said she felt like she had to do something, so she wrote a letter to the editor and took a copy to the Supervisors office at the court house. She was told there that supervisors would vote on the zoning change the following Monday. Gordon started making calls, and sending e-mails to try to get as many people to the meeting as she could. She and friend Ellis Anderson spent the weekend talking about the issue and decided to they would get organized.

"We were caught unaware, and a lot of people were caught unaware," said Anderson. "We went home and started brainstorming and came up with the idea of an organization. We came up with a name, went on line and bought a domain site, and started sending e-mails." Coastal Community Watch was born.

After supervisors gave their approval to the new district, Anderson and Gordon found they only had ten days to file an appeal to the decision in circuit court. Supervisors advised them to hire an attorney if they were not happy with the decision-so that is exactly what they did.

They did some research and asked around and came up with attorney Reilly Morse's name. When they called him he listened and agreed to take the case. Now the newly formed group had to come up with a retainer and they had just days to do so. The e-mails went out within days the money began to pour in with checks made out to Morse, Anderson said.

"I would come home and a check would be in one of my old shoes on the front porch," said Anderson. "It was amazing-within three days we had formed the organization and within ten days we had an attorney."

The issue will come up on October 3 in Circuit Court.

Coastal Community Watch held a kick-off party in June to celebrate. The organization currently has more than 800 members who are connected primarily by e-mail. "We want to stress that we are not anti-development," said Anderson. "We know that growth is inevitable, but we just don't want the community to sell out to the first thing that comes along." Currently the group is researching alternative development, as well as tax laws in other states designed to protect long term residents and retirees in areas where property values are skyrocketing. They plan to meet with state legislators to discuss the possibility of introducing legislation in Mississippi.

There are many alternatives to unrestricted height and density development, Gordon says, alternatives that Coastal Community Watch members think will be more cohesive with the community.

"But that will require putting on the brakes temporarily while we are taking a look at the alternatives," she said. "We need to do some serious thinking about the legacy that we want to leave behind. The Hancock County Comprehensive plan stresses growth metered with the desire to preserve the county's existing historical sites and sense of community history. The plan stresses that the county is steeped in unique history and traditions which set the region apart from the rest of Mississippi."

Coastal Community Watch want to be proactive in protecting that uniqueness, said Anderson. "Once we are a Destin, we can never go back."

The group is calling for a temporary moratorium on any permits for large development in the county.

For more information on Coastal Community Watch go to www.coastalcommunitywatch.org. There are no regular meetings, though the group is always looking for volunteers to attend planning and zoning meetings and other community meetings.

Stennis -- 30th anniversary

There have been more than 2,200 engines tested at the space center since 1975, including the ones that helped propel the Space Shuttle Discovery's return to flight mission, STS-114, last month.

Fuel tank problems early in that mission has caused NASA to ground future shuttle until the issue is resolved. However, this should have very minimal, if any, affect on the testing schedule at Stennis. Fifty tests are in line for the upcoming fiscal year beginning in October.

"A lot of the objectives we will be meeting during this time are not really related to flight per flight hardware anyway," said Ronnie Rigney, the Space Shuttle

Main Engine Project Manager at Stennis. "They will be certification testing for various components."

Thursday's test, a hot-fire burn of 380 seconds, was witnessed by a crowd of spectators including shuttle astronauts Jerry Ross, Alan Poindexter and Apollo 13 astronaut Fred Haise, Jr. Poindexter is scheduled to fly into space on the shuttle next December.

The first shuttle engine test at Stennis was conducted May 19, 1975. A total of 10 tests were conducted in the first two months to help establish fuel preburner, oxygen preburner and main combustion chamber ignition. Three years later, test teams at SSC were firing the Main Propulsion Test Article: the three-engine cluster that helps propel the Space Shuttle into orbit.

There have been 114 missions since the first Space Shuttle took flight from Kennedy Space Center (KSC) on April 12, 1981, all powered by SSMEs tested at SSC. The engines are tested on Test Stands A-1 and A-2, the site of Thursday's test, which were built in the 1960s to test the first and second stages of the Apollo Saturn V rocket that safely transported Americans to the Moon.

"The SSME is a unique engine, and 30 years of testing the engine at Stennis is highly unique, also," said Dave Geiger, Pratt & Whitney Rocketdyne's site manager at SSC. "We have learned a lot about how to not only improve the engine, but also the test facilities and capabilities."

Pratt & Whitney Rocketdyne, in Canoga Park, CA, manufactures the SSME and its high-pressure turbo pumps. Pratt & Whitney recently bought Rocketdyne Propulsion & Power from Boeing. This was the first engine test after the acquisition.

During testing at SSC, the engines are mounted vertically on the 185-foot-tall stands for test-firing. Instruments are added, and then the engines are hot-fire tested, usually the amount of time it takes to lift the Space Shuttle into space.

The Space Shuttle's

Return to Flight began the journey to finish construction of the International Space Station, return to the Moon and go on to explore Mars and the solar system. Discoveries from these explorations will continue to advance scientific knowledge as well as lead to the development of new, everyday technologies.

"Hopefully we'll be back up there soon," said Poindexter at Thursday's test. "Like all test missions, we learned a lot about what was broken and will fix the things we missed in pre-flight."

DuPont -- dioxin found legal team are representing close to 2,000 local residents in a suit that alleges that toxic waste from DuPont DeLisle is responsible for a myriad of serious health problems in themselves and family members.

Plant officials had maintained for years that the manufacturing process at the plant did produce other types of dioxins, but not the more deadly TCDD. Tests performed on samples gathered during a three-and-a-half-day visit to the plant by plaintiff's attorneys uncovered the presence of the compound. DuPont DeLisle officials confirmed that samples collected by their team at the same time, also contained TCDD.

The compound was found in trace levels in three samples taken by the plant, said DuPont DeLisle public relations director Terry Gooding on Thursday, in the ore dryer baghouse area and in two samples taken from a fume disposal stack, not currently in use.

Two samples were taken from the stack, one at the entry point and one at the exit point, both positive for TCDD's. The baghouse is an area where ore dust is separated from oxygen, said Gooding.

Bags of the dust are disposed of in a land fill on site, he said. Plaintiff's attorneys say their samples detected the presence of various dioxin compounds in most of the scores of samples taken all across the plant site. Test results will be presented to the jury next week, when the suit is expected to get underway in Laurel, Smiley said.

"Former Plant manager Aldo Morel denied the existence of TCDD's on the plant site," said Smiley. "If we had not fought for the truth for the last four years I'm confident that this would have never been made public. DuPont manufactures as many false explanations as they do dioxins."

Gooding said on Thursday that the plant had not been testing specifically for TCDD's.

"We have informed the appropriate agencies and will continue to work with them to evaluate these results to determine what, if any, further action is needed," said Gooding. Second we will continue to use appropriate protective equipment for employees working in the baghouse and handling ore dryer baghouse supersacks. Third, we are evaluating our processes to determine if there are any changes we can make to reduce the dioxins generated in the area."

TCDD was thought to be the compound responsible for a number of serious illnesses in veterans returning from Vietnam after exposure to Agent Orange. The Department of Veteran's Affairs lists certain types of cancers, type II diabetes, certain skin disorders, and a number of birth defects in children born to veterans after exposure, as effects associated with that exposure.

DuPont filed in the state

Supreme Court an emergency interlocutory appeal on Friday afternoon asking the court to reverse the judge's ruling last disallowing nine of their expert witnesses. DuPont says the witnesses are crucial to their case because they can prove plaintiff Bruce Strong's illnesses were not caused by activities at the plant.

Taxes -- assessment

income residents. Apartments are typically leased at about 80 percent of the cost of similar area apartments. The projects are built in cooperation with state or federal programs.

Bay Park is just one of many Section 42 properties across the state that will be appealing their assessed valuation. They do not want income from the one time sale of tax credits used to access income value.

If appeals go in favor of the Section 42 properties, county and city governments and schools across the state stand to lose hundreds of thousands of tax dollars, said Ladner. Locally the county and school district stand to lose about $50,000 a year if the property is reassessed at a lower value, he said.

For tax purposes Section 42 housing is assessed by the income approach, and Ladner says, that includes income from the sale of tax credits. Bay Park corporate owners, The Park Companies in Jackson do not agree.

When contacted, manager of special projects at the corporate offices Bill Hardin said he needed to reserve comment because of the possibility of future litigation should Supervisors vote in the favor of the county tax office.

Though he couldn't comment, Hardin did send a copy of a letter that he said went out to all the tax offices in the state. In that letter from the State Tax Commission, dated May 20, it is stated that moneys received from the sale of tax credits shall not be used in determining the true value of Section 42 property for ad valorem tax purposes.

Ladner said that Senate Bill 3100 passed earlier this year meant to allow the value of tax credits to be used in determining income value, but that the tax commission interpreted the bill differently after intense lob-bing from the owners of Section 42 property.

"I am not trying to get every dollar out of every tax payer," said Ladner. "But it is unfair to other property owners to give in to this. The Tax Commission has interpreted the law in a way other than what the legislature intended. These property owners do not want to be treated fairly-they want to be treated better, and every tax payer should be outraged at this. It is unconstitutional."

Ladner said that the profits from the sale of tax credits, which could amount to as much as a million dollars or more, if included into income value, would be capitalized over a 20 year period.

Bay, Hancock & OLA all serve up wins on court

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

On Thursday, all three area volleyball teams recorded wins on the court. Hancock won their first match of the year against the visiting Lady Crusaders of Mercy Cross while OLA tallied their second win of 2005 against Vancleave. Bay High defeated Gautier on the road to gain their third win in four games.

The Lady Hawks had to go five games to beat the Lady Crusaders. The scores from the games were 25-18, 22-25, 18-25, 25-13 and 15-

5. The Lady Hawks jumped out in front of Mercy Cross in the first game and was able to hold the lead for the win. The Lady Crusaders reversed that trend in the second and third games, though.

With their backs against the wall, the Lady Hawks opened the fourth game with a 6-1 advantage that they pushed to 14-6.

After a brief run by Mercy Cross, Hancock was able to claim the win and force the final game. The Lady Hawks surged to the lead in the final game which is only scored to 15.

Hancock head coach Amie Stennett stated, "I thought the girls did well with the attack that we are trying to install here. We have only worked on it this week, so I was pleased. We still need to improve on our communication on the court, as well as, our conditioning. It is tough to go five games this early in the season. We just need to get back to practice and work hard."

Hancock (1-0) entertains Long Beach at home on Tuesday, August 16th with the junior varsity game beginning at 5pm. The JV squad defeated Mercy Cross on Thursday but scoring results were unavailable.

The Our Lady Academy Crescents needed four games to dispose of the Lady Bulldogs of Vancleave on Thursday night. Surrounded by a tremendous fan atmosphere, the Crescents defeated Vancleave 26-24, 25-15, 21-25 and 25-22 to earn the win.

OLA won the first two games before Vancleave claimed the third game in their best of five format.

The Crescents spent most of the night working their rotation looking at various combinations to improvise for the injury that occurred with senior outside hitter Lauren Renz.

Crescents head coach Mike Meyers commented, "Tonight's game was just an old-fashioned rock'em, sock'em, pull-no-punches battle between two aggressive and spirited teams. It was a great match for the fans. Both teams are in early season form and should get much better as the season flows. We are still trying to improvise our lineup in relation to the injury to Lauren Renz which creates a huge void in our rotation."

OLA was led by Amanda Meyers with 14 points followed by Rachel Cuevas with 9 points and 7 kills. Kaylee Schmitt led OLA in kills with 21 and Victoria Romano had 10. Shelly Reboul paced the team with 18 assists and Sarah Loiacano added 15 assists.

In the junior varsity contest, OLA defeated Vancleave in three games by the scores of 25-7, 22-25 and 25-13. Emily led OLA with 14 points while Lizzy Milner added 9 assists. Katherine Lobrano and Lauren Poncet each had 5 kills.

OLA (2-0) traveled to Northwest Rankin on Saturday, August 13th to play Ridgeland and northwest Rankin in an early season round-robin format. The Crescents will take to the road on Tuesday, August 16th to play the Lady Indians of Biloxi. Game time is set for 6pm.

The Bay High Lady Tigers (3-1) gained their third win in four games with three-set sweep of Gautier on Thursday evening. The Lady Tigers won with scores of 25-22, 25-20 and 25-23.

The Lady Tigers were led by Destiny Flood who tallied an amazing 25 points off serve and added 8 kills. Hannah Johnson added 6 kills for Bay High.

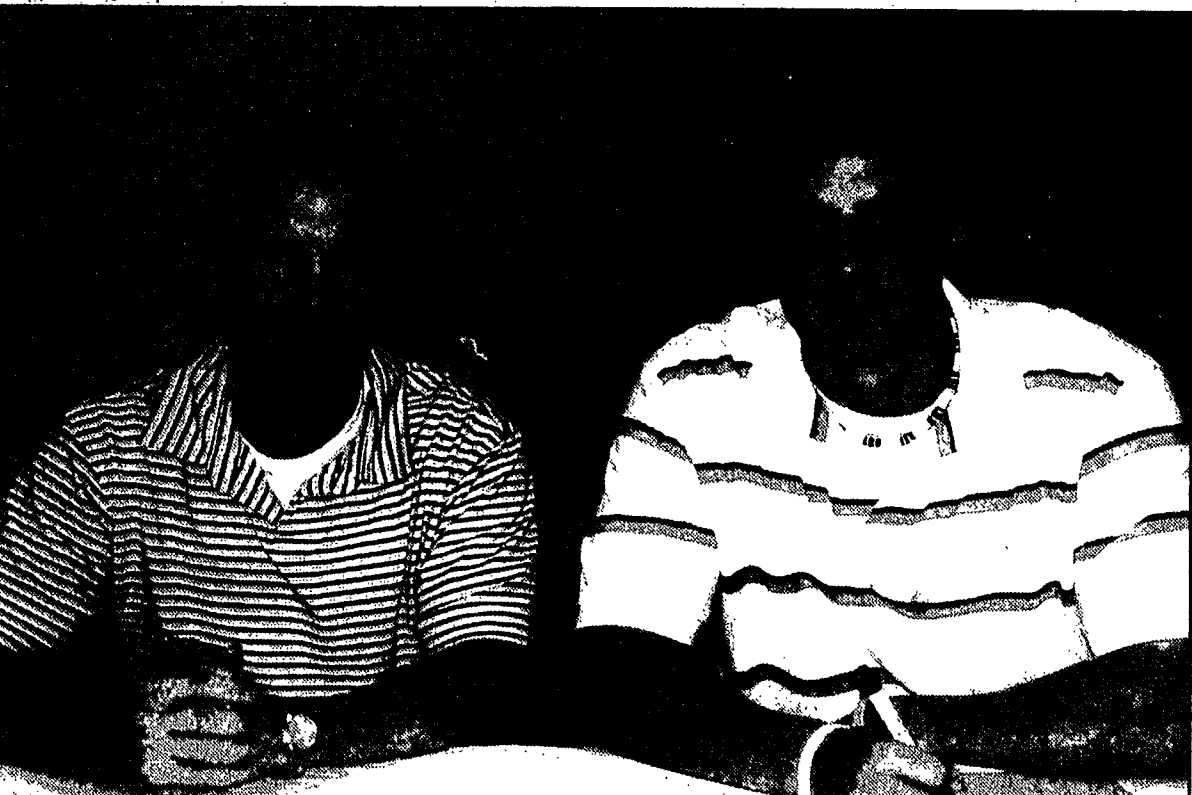

Bay High is off on Tuesday but will resume action on Thursday, August 18th against Biloxi in their first home game of the year.

Game time at Bay High is set for 6 p.m. Look for live coverage on Bay High in next Sunday's edition.

We set aside today as a special remembrance of your lives and again reflect on the joy and the fulfillment you gave us. These six long, lonely years are only a reminder of what we have been missing. We continue to try and put the pieces of our hearts back together, even though we have accepted life will never be the same. There will always be that void. Our Lord will one day heal our wounds and reunite us all again. Until then, we have your love to sustain us. We carry you in our hearts every single day that we live. We'll cherish and love you forever, our sweet babies, Ceci, Sean and Joe-Joe.

Jackson Hewitt® Income Tax Course Starts Soon

Enroll and learn how to prepare income tax returns!

"I signed up for the Jackson Hewitt Income Tax Course thinking maybe I could do my own taxes and save myself some money. I was so impressed with the course material and the tax knowledge of the instructors. I went on to become a tax preparer working for Jackson Hewitt Tax Service!" Said Julius Wright.

Julius is one of thousands of students who enroll in the Jackson Hewitt Tax Service Income Tax Course, or ITC, a six-week program offered each fall in Jackson Hewitt Tax Service offices nationwide. This instructor led course is ideal for students who enjoy learning in a classroom environment. While the course provides students with the basics of individual tax preparation, it's the review of tax industry insights, "hidden" deductions and under-utilized tax advantages that make the course truly valuable.

"The Jackson Hewitt Income Tax Course gives you a better advantage... when you file your taxes because you learn about all the credits and deductions available to you," said Vonetta Wilson.

Ms. Wilson signed up for the Jackson Hewitt ITC when she was 17 years old, hoping to learn how to prepare her own taxes as she entered the work force for the first time. She did so well in the program that she decided to apply for a job as a Jackson Hewitt tax preparer.

The ITC is a 6-week program that meets for two three-hour sessions. Trained tax professionals lead each class and apply adult learning theories to teach participants how to complete the forms and schedules necessary to file an income tax return.

Tami Dowdle was very impressed with Jackson Hewitt's instructors whom she credits with being completely up to date on all the latest tax laws. According to Tami, the Jackson Hewitt Income Tax Course provides participants with an "understanding of taxes that works whether you're a professional or a homemaker."

The Jackson Hewitt Income Tax Course has helped college students, military spouses, stay-at-home parents, retirees and many others acquire the tax knowledge necessary to prepare tax returns for themselves, their family and friends. Many even start a new career as Jackson Hewitt tax preparer.

For more information, please call 228-463-1040, or visit us online at www.jackson-hewitt.com.

"Completion of this course is neither an offer nor a guarantee of employment. Additional training or experience may be required. Most offices are independently owned and operated."

White pickup trucks and brown-eyed babies

Greg handed me a bill for the plumbing repairs he had done. We were in the garage. I had called Greg to fix a small outdoor leak and, as usual, he had come promptly and quickly fixed the problem. What was equally nice was that, as usual, the bill he handed me was reasonable. I began to write a check.

"I see you got yourself a new truck, Mr. Paul."

My pickup was in the garage with us. Usually it would be Stella's car in the garage and the pickup would be outside under the metal awning. But Stella was gone for the day and I had to unload some things. So my pickup sat in the cool of the garage.

"This is a mighty fine looking truck, Mr. Paul. I like the color white, makes it look neat, clean." Greg was walking around the truck admiringly. I had stopped writing and was following him around. I opened the passenger door. He looked inside.

"Hooie! Look at that. CD player, reclining seats, cruise control! This is a nice truck." He stepped back and looked at the cargo bed. "I really like your bed liner. I need to get one like that for my truck."

After agreeing with him on all his remarks, I finished writing the check and Greg drove off. I wiped some dust off the hood of the pickup, checked that the passenger door was properly closed and went back inside.

Later when Stella came home, I told her about Greg fixing the leak. "Oh, and he really liked the new truck. He said he was going to get a bed liner just like it for his truck."

Stella listened, nodding at the right times in an absent sort of way, and then said, "How much was the bill?"

Now that response from Stella is a perfect example of the difference between men and women. Men know there are some things that are important that women think are not and there are silly things that women think are important when men know they're not.

Dolphins are focus of summer GCRL study

BY DAVID TISDALE
Central Michigan University biology student Libby Draminski has few opportunities to conduct research on dolphins in her home state, as Michigan is not famed as a home for the popular marine mammal.

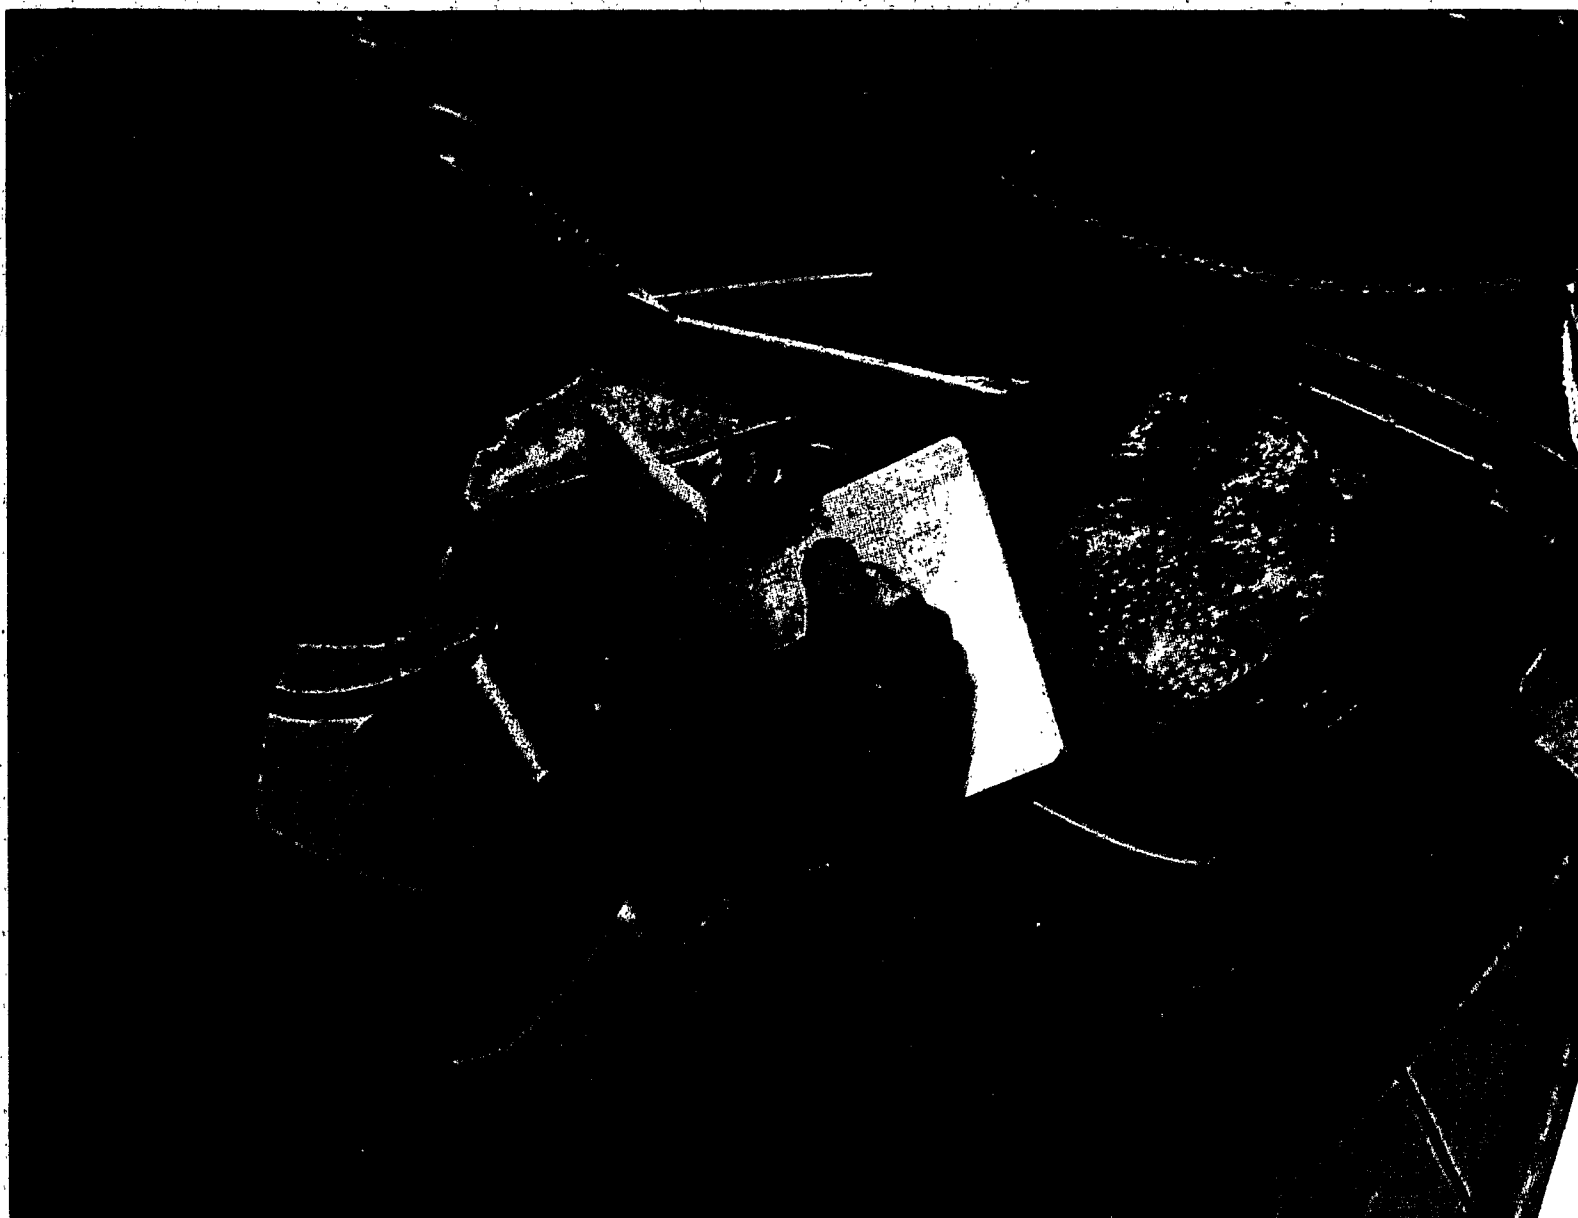

But that changed after she came to Mississippi in July, on the recommendation of one of her professors, to take a course examining marine mammals in their natural habitat through The University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's Summer Field Program.

The course, titled "Cetacean Behavior and Cognition," is taught by Dr. Stan Kuczaj, chair of the Southern Miss Department of Psychology. It is just one of a variety of classes offered at the undergraduate and graduate level through the GCRL program, giving students opportunities to enhance their classroom experience by exploring the plants, animals and ecology of the northern Gulf of Mexico and the Mississippi coast. Many of the classes incorporate field experiences with trips out into the Mississippi Sound aboard the GCRL's oceanographic and fisheries research vessels.

"We've got dolphins - one or two," Draminski shouted out to Kuczaj and her classmates after spotting dorsal fins jutting out of the Gulf water during a recent excursion near Horn Island aboard the GCRL research vessel Hermes. As the day wore on the sightings would steadily increase, highlighted by a brief performance from a group of dolphins jumping in and out of the water nearby and chattering, to the delight of the vessel's crew and passengers.

"It's been awesome," Draminski said of her experience at GCRL. "I thought I might get stuck just reading books, so I didn't expect to come out on the boats that much. But the course is very hands-on."

"Gaining experience is the big thing (by taking the course), which would have been hard to get back home," she said. "There aren't many dolphins in Michigan."

Students enrolled in the two-week course used a variety of methods to monitor and study dolphins, including still photography and video, while keeping a diary of daily activities. Students also listened in on dolphin communication by using a hydrophone, a device that can be lowered into the water, allowing one to listen to dolphin whistles through attached headphones. The communication is recorded, allowing Kuczaj and his students to later examine both the whistles and accompanying activity to determine if there are connections between the two.

Photographs taken of dorsal fins help students follow and observe individual dolphins to look for indications of gender, patterns of social interaction and which ones travel in pairs, among other factors. "The dorsal fin is like a fingerprint," said Deirdre Yeater of Bay St. Louis, a doctoral student in psychology at Southern Miss. "Each one is different, that's how we can identify and track them."

While dolphins have their own language, so do the students in Kuczaj's class when describing the mammals' behaviors and sounds. "Group social ball," or GSB, refers to a tight congregation of dolphins interfacing. This event is typically accompanied by a white lather surfacing above the group, possibly indicating communication. "Fluke out" and "fluke slap" refer to tail movements, the latter judged to be an indication of annoyance, while "chuffing" is when a dolphin engages in forced breathing, possibly as a result of agitation.

Blue Passionflower is cold hardy, tropical

To say that blue passionflower is a vigorous vine is a huge understatement, and the flower production is also very impressive. The blue passionflower is known botanically as Passiflora caerulea and is cold hardy over the entire state.

A couple of years ago, I purchased a blue passionflower from one of our local nurseries, and mine has been evergreen through two winters. I spoke with a tropical plant nut like evergreen. It will die to the ground in colder climates and return in spring.

The blue passionflower is native to Brazil and Argentina and offers a long blooming season from late spring through fall. Although called blue, it actually has white petals and scores of attractive blue filaments. The name passionflower is one other note of interest. The flowers of passion vines are associated with the crucifixion of Jesus Christ, especially in Latin countries. The five sepals and five petals are said to represent the apostles minus Judas, who betrayed Jesus, and Peter, who denied Jesus.

The five stamens represent the five wounds Jesus received (one each in his hands and feet and the piercing of his side by a spear), the stigmas represent the three nails used to nail Jesus to the cross, and the corona of numerous filaments is said to represent the crown of thorns. Certain tropical species possess foliage marked by silvery-green rounded variegations, and these are said to represent the coins of silver for which Judas betrayed Jesus.

If you are searching for a special vine for a fence, trellis or arbor, then you must consider the blue passionflower. Know that passion vines require good drainage and plenty of sunlight to be prolific bloomers. Provide a good support structure and keep well mulched. A light application of fertilizer in late spring and mid-summer keeps the foliage looking its best.

Depending on your disposition, there might be one drawback to the passion vine. The native Gulf Coast Fritillary butterfly with its beautiful orange wings likes the passion vine as a host plant. In other words, their larvae will munch on a few leaves, but you will be rewarded with more butterflies. No doubt you have had a fruit drink or snow cone with the juice from the tropical passionflower, Passiflora edulis. While we can't grow this one, the blue passionflower and several other cold hardy varieties will produce edible fruit.

The native passion vine, known by the common names of apricot vine, maypop and wild passionflower, has three-lobed leaves. The blue passionflower has mostly five-lobed leaves ranging to as many as nine on occasion.

Many think the red passionflower is the most beautiful.

The red varieties Passiflora coccinea and Passiflora vitifolia both have started showing up at garden centers the past few years. These are not nearly as cold hardy as the others and will need good protection and mulch to entice them to return in the southern part of the state.

Let me give you another example.

Stella was in the hospital recently getting a new knee and I was running back and forth. When I got home the first day, there was a phone message from Bobby Ruth. Her daughter Melissa was in town for a few days. Shannon had brought her new baby, Meredith, with her and Bobby Ruth was inviting us and the rest of the neighbors over to have coffee and see the baby; what she called a "Sip and See."

It wasn't till Stella came home a week later that I told her about the call.

"Did you go see the baby?"

"No, I didn't have time." As I said this, I realized I had forgotten to return Bobby Ruth's call. I decided not to say anything about that.

"What is wrong with you, Paul. Sometimes I wonder! It was nice of her to ask. I'll write her a note. I bet the baby was a darling. I wish I could have seen it."

This is what I mean. Women are like that. Stella is no different. A women's reactions when it comes to babies is always the same. Someone brings a new baby to work and everyone says, "Oh how precious!" "Will you look at those little fingers?" "Oh my heavens, he has hair." Or no hair or one hair! And the very best remark, I think, of all the inane things they say, "Look at those big brown eyes!" or blue eyes, or green. Good lord! Eyes, for heavens sake, are eyes, color them any color you want, they are just eyes.

To but it bluntly, when you look at a baby, if he's normal, he'll have all of these things. Its true they may come in different colors or quantities, but still what you see is just another says-goo-and-wiggles baby.

There is built in every woman these squeals of platitudes, this gushing of inane banalities that erupt whenever a baby appears. It's a woman's automatic response, whether she is in a nursery, at the super market check out counter or even at a car accident.

Opposing this is a stoic calmness among men during these female outbursts. To be truthful, it is sometimes hard to appear composed when the women you love sputters out things you can't believe she is saying to a small thing that looks perfectly normal to you. But women do have many other-wise redeeming qualities, so I guess it's best to stand there and nod and perhaps say something like, "That's a real nice looking baby."

I don't know, perhaps, Stella is right. Maybe there are points of etiquette that I should learn. I wonder if I should drop Greg a note thanking him for admiring my bed liner.

Dolphins -- GCRL study

which one student aboard the Hermes described as a "dolphin sneeze."

Kuczaj has been studying dolphin behavior for more than 16 years and has been teaching the course at GCRL on an occasional basis for the last six years. He has also led a similar study-abroad course in Honduras through the Southern Miss Center for International Education, and his research has received grant funding from the Office of Naval Research and the U.S. Department of Commerce.

"Every year, USM is getting to be better known across the country as a great place to study marine mammals," he said. "The Mississippi Sound is a popular spot for dolphins, and it is therefore easy to spot them, sometimes in only three feet of water."

"Kuczaj and his students believe studying dolphins is critical to understanding how best for humans and the mammals to coexist, particularly with regard to the coast fishing industry. "We can study human interaction and boat interaction with dolphins (through this course)," Yeater said, noting that often the dolphins will swim alongside the research vessels. "Do they approach, or are they evading (boats)? It's important to know their reaction to us, because this is their home."

Southern Miss Provost

and Vice President for Academic Affairs Dr. Jay Grimes, who also serves as director of the GCRL, agrees with Yeater that the research in Kuczaj's class is an important effort. "The Mississippi Gulf Coast is a prime habitat for the bottlenose dolphin, and for that reason we need to learn more about these wonderful mammals."

David Burke, retired

assistant director for lab operations and research scientist at GCRL for more than 35 years, continues to work there part time and joined Kuczaj and his students on their field experience aboard the Hermes.

He praised the course as an important element of the university's marine science program.

"I'm glad to see it being offered, that this topic is being addressed," he said. "If I were a student again, this is one course I would have definitely taken."

You can help by sponsoring a specific teacher(s) at one or more of our schools.
Sponsorships are $150 per class per year.

N.I.E. and YOU make it possible to put our local newspaper in the classrooms to put students in touch with what is happening in their community.
Thanks to you, N.I.E. is possible!

Newspapers In Education is a program in which newspapers supplement traditional teaching materials in the classroom. N.I.E. programs are provided to local schools through paid sponsorship programs.

Newspapers In Education programs teach with the newspaper. Students learn to become critical thinkers through reading, analyzing and discussing newspaper stories and editorials. They use the knowledge they gain to engage in conversations with peers and family members.

If you would like to be an NIE SPONSOR or if you are a teacher and would like to use the Echo's N.I.E. program in your classroom you may contact THE SEA COAST ECHO at 467-5474.

AREA DEVOTIONAL &amp; DIRECTORY PAGES

What a wonderful world it would be

Born on August 4, 1901 to Mary Albert, a 15- or 16-year-old prostitute in a New Orleans neighborhood so violent that it was known as The Battlefield, Louis was put in the Colored Waif's Home (Milne Boys Home) for impishly taking his stepfather's 38-caliber pistol and firing six blanks into the air on New Year's Eve in 1913.

He soon joined the brass band where he played the tam-bourine, the alto horn and the trumpet. After one year in the Colored Waif's Home, he went out on his own and found work in the honky-tonks and jook joints of his Perdido Street neighborhood where he caught the eye of the city's most respected cornet player, Joe "King" Oliver.

The rest, of course, was history for teen-age music prodigy Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong. Overwhelmed and inspired by this amazing success story from the Colored Waif's Home, Linda Lewis founded Armstrong Family Services in New Orleans.

Linda had been a child advocate volunteer for many years, working with Xavier Prep High School, her Alma Mater, to clean and sanitize schools in the ninth ward of Orleans Parish. The idea, of course, was to facilitate children's reentry into school.

Nowadays, the main conversation about our youth invariably concerns their safety, family situation, education and protection from the world of crime and drug trafficking.

Linda Lewis understood this in her quest to steer children through the shoals of crime, drug addiction, premature sexual involvement, peer pressure and poor education.

Her efforts to achieve this guidance and direction led her to open Teen Center, a supervised "hang-out" for teens to be safe, to discover their artistic creativity, to enjoy music, to be involved in sports, and to encounter successful role models who can push them, challenge them and motivate them to reach for greater things in life.

As she wrote her proposal for Teen Center, she realized she needed help.

Mysteriously, she was moved to call Cathy Harris, a friend she had not seen in nearly twenty years. Cathy and Sally Ann Roberts were gearing up for a citywide recruitment for their own youth venture, a mentoring network called Each One Save One.

"If you support me in developing our organization, I will help you start your Teen Center," Cathy Harris assured Linda Lewis.

As a co-worker and apprentice in Each One Save One, Linda learned firsthand the great need for organizations to support underprivileged children, homeless families, and especially adolescent boys separated from their families and placed in shelters for men.

At this point, Linda Lewis and Mubarak Kareem, Superintendent of Milne Boys Home, created Armstrong Inc. at Milne Boys Home. The only program for the homeless in Louisiana that focuses on keeping families with adolescent boys together, it is the fastest growing program for the homeless in America.

Mentoring training is the obvious staple of all Armstrong employees, for mentoring is the one constant and one of few stabilizing factors in the lives of the children they serve; namely, the transient who attend 2-3 schools in the course of a school year.

"Training mentors is important because we have to know how to work with children whose personalities may be different from our own. We must also realize our strengths, weaknesses and limitations as well as theirs.

Mentoring training helps us to realize our role in the triangle partnership among mentor, teacher and parent, which dramatically impacts the child." Further, "we believe that with a mentor, each child can have the opportunity to reach his or her fullest potential. We envision confident, responsible children, who are excited about life, creating safe, caring, productive families and communities."

By linking children to counseling, educational opportunities and recreational activities, Armstrong Family Services goes after the root causes, empowering homeless and at-risk children to seek and gain personal growth and success. These lead to self-respect, self-esteem, and the basic life skills of communication, conflict resolution, anger management, teamwork and cooperation.

The Boston Strategy is a highly successful youth servicing and community policing formula which communicates, dialogues, networks and collaborates with every legal, civic, social, educational and political organization of a city. This tight collaboration is used to combat crime and drug trafficking, and to meet and fulfill all the needs of youth.

Such a large initiative, just as New York community policing, has an operational life of its own.

Yet, it depends on the firm foundation provided by grassroots organizations which are very close to the people, especially the youth, of a community.

Whenever a large community plans to address crime and drug trafficking problems, the first focus is perforce our youngest citizens, our present and future: our children and adolescents.

That is why organizations like Each One Save One and Armstrong Family Services are so crucial in identifying, unraveling and solving those problems.

Whatever is being done on a grander scale by the FBI, DEA, municipal police, parole officers, social workers, and various volunteers in the community, must be underpinned by grassroots organizations which feel the most intimate pulse of the community.

Ideally, and most desirably, all grand-scale initiatives marshal all sundry components of such organizations into a formidable dynamo which vacuums out all negative, evil things from a community and brings safety, education, prosperity and contentment.

Any kind of help being funneled from the federal, state or municipal government, as well as from corporate or individual sources, should be allocated wisely among all groups which are serving our youth, especially the grassroots groups which are so efficient.

Word of the Week

By Dennis Prutow

Are you plagued by intellectual arrogance?

Did you know men and women in academic circles have a great respect for Jonathan Edwards?

Jonathan Edwards lived between 1703 and 1758.

He was probably the greatest intellect in American history. Almost all those in academic circles reverence Edwards as a learned man and philosopher. Although these men and women bow before the intellect of Jonathan Edwards, they hope he is wrong. They hope he is wrong in his assessments about this life and the life to come.

Why? Well, if Jonathan Edwards is correct, most present day intellectuals are doomed. You see, Jonathan Edwards taught the so-called "hard doctrines" of the Bible. He taught, "the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men" (Romans 1:18). Jonathan Edwards taught only God can save men and women from eternal destruction. "In this is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins" (1 John 4:10). A propitiation is a sacrifice which appeases God's wrath against sin. Jesus Christ took upon himself the wrath of God due to others for their sins. As a result, Christ's sacrifice for sin is the ultimate definition of love.

It is this kind of teaching most intellectuals really hate; they also know they are doomed if it is true.

Local students among MS State graduates

Nearly 800 Mississippi State students are candidates for degrees at the conclusion of the 2005 summer term.

Because the university doesn't hold graduation exercises in August summer graduates will be invited to participate December 10 in the fall semester commencement program.

All bachelor's-degree students with exceptional scholastic averages and at least half the total required course hours earned at MSU are graduated with honors. Their specific levels of recognition and the minimum required averages for each, based on a 4.0 scale, include: summa cum laude, 3.80; magna cum laude, 3.60; and cum laude, 3.40.

The academic honors are recorded on the graduates' diplomas and permanent records, as well as in the fall commencement program.

Degree candidates from the Sea Coast Echo readership area include: Jacqueline W. Carver of Waveland, Business and Industry; Christopher M. Genin of Bay St. Louis, Business and Industry; Hazel M. Payet of Bay St. Louis, Business and Industry; and Laurence A. Stones of Hancock County, Engineering.

Velvet Revolver christens Hard Rock Live Biloxi

THE SEA COAST ECHO
And now for the moment all the Coast's been waiting for...the unveiling of the first hot band to play at the new Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Biloxi. Hard Rock Biloxi announced today that modern rock band, Velvet Revolver, is to be the first ticketed band to perform at 8 p.m. Friday, September 9 at Hard Rock Live. Tickets may be purchased starting at 10 a.m. Monday, August 15 at ticketmaster.com for $125.

Velvet Revolver will christen the 7,500 sq. ft. Hard Rock Live venue at the new Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Biloxi with a full-out rock and roll concert. The venue has 4 million dollars in sound and lighting equipment and can host up to 1,500 people. Concert-goers will get that real concert arena feeling with standing room only on the floor and the ability to get up close and personal. VIP guests can watch the show in style with 388 balcony seats and relax in the adjoining, very elaborate bar and lounging area just off the entertainment venue and overlooking the gaming floor. This will also be the place that VIPs get to meet and mingle with the entertainers performing at Hard Rock Live. All Hard Rock Live concert attendees must be 21 or older.

Everything you've heard about Velvet Revolver is true. This is the band that brings together three former members of one of rock's greatest groups Guns N' Roses—Slash, bassist Duff McKagan and drummer Matt Sorum—together with one of rock's most charismatic front men, Scott Weiland, formerly of Stone Temple Pilots, and guitarist Dave Kushner, ex-Wasted Youth, Electric Love Hogs and Dave Navarro's band, among others.

"The band was chosen as the first to play Biloxi for its popularity and authentic true rock and roll roots. We know from our market research that there are high entertainment expectations from locals and we think they will love our choice of Velvet Revolver and other upcoming entertainment," said President of Hard Rock Biloxi, Joe Billhimer.

The idea behind Velvet Revolver remains a powerfully simple one. "There is no real concept to me," explains guitarist Slash. "We set out to make music we enjoy and can feel proud of playing—music that people we like will want to listen to. As soon as you start thinking beyond that—about wanting to keep up with the Joneses or about fitting in with somebody else's format—that's when you lose the map. So we've just done what we do, and tried to have a cool time doing it."

The band recently released, "Come On Come In" for the Fantastic Four film and since releasing their debut album Contraband on RCA in 2004 — a record that Rolling Stone hailed as "modern-rock nirvana...vicious, unapologetic..."—Velvet Revolver have become rock's most exciting and successful new band. Contraband has now sold over three million copies worldwide, earned a Grammy Award, shattered records and garnered massive critical acclaim.

Contraband debuted at #1 on the Billboard album chart, selling over 250,000 copies. Notably, this marks the best-ever debut for a new rock artist in the SoundScan era. Newsweek describes the band as "truly explosive" and Maxim says, [Velvet Revolver] "bring unpredictability back to rock."

Velvet Revolver is everything the band's name suggests and much more. This is modern rock with a sense of danger and beauty that's been missing for far too long. Their suitably explosive yet gorgeous debut effort Contraband marks the spot for a new beginning from a band of rock & roll brothers united by some legendary pasts and a suddenly brighter future.

Slash, McKagan and Sorum came together to play a benefit/tribute for their friend and fellow musician Randy Castillo in 2002. The buzz of playing together again got the three thinking. "There was still something very powerful and intense between us," says Slash.

"That chemistry never went away," says McKagan.

Sensing enough time had lapsed since their less-than-pleasant departures from Guns N' Roses, the trio linked with Kushner—a high school friend of Slash's who had been playing with Duff in recent years. "He's our secret weapon," says Duff. "He plays amazing textures and he can handle himself with Slash." After some false starts with other musicians, the four decided to try an unusually open call for a new frontperson.

Documented by VH1 cameras for an upcoming special, this process turned out to be long and sometimes painful. Fortunately, as the Great Lead Singer search was going on, Duff was spending time socially with Stone Temple Pilots then front man, Weiland. Now the rest is history. Weiland was the perfect fit they were looking for.

For Slash, "We were like a bunch of kids who just learned how to play the same chord together. That's what it's been like every time we've done something together. We're thrilled, like 'Hey, we wrote a song!' 'Hey, we played a gig!' Maybe that's why this has worked—because we're actually the opposite of jaded."

Early in its evolution, the group released the song "Set Me Free" on The Hulk soundtrack and recorded a cover of Pink Floyd's "Money" for another movie, The Italian Job. When it came time to sign a deal and record their first album, the band chose RCA in part because of the interest of Chairman Clive Davis. "Clive actually flew out here and courted us, and he watched us rehearse along with his little posse," Slash remembers. "It was really flattering because he's such an icon and he's been doing it for so long and can really recognize something."

That decision made, it was time for Velvet Revolver to take aim and make their first album. Now the band is on tour and you can see them play the Mississippi Gulf Coast for the first time only at Hard Rock Live at Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Biloxi.

NASCAR Racing

A seventh- and sixth-place overall finish the last two years is looking like it may be followed by at least one in the top-five for Tony Stewart, if not another title to go with his 2002 championship. That's how hot Stewart and the No. 14 team has been lately, and today they look to keep it going with a second-straight win in the Sirius Satellite Radio at the Glen in Watkins Glen, N.Y. He overcame severe stomach cramps to take the checkered flag here last year.

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX The 2005 Teen Choice Awards

A must-watch for youngsters, this awards special is optional viewing for the rest of us, although it couldn't hurt to get in touch with what the kiddies are watching and listening to. It goes beyond the standard best actor and favorite song awards, with trophies in such categories as Choice Liplock and Choice Male Hottie. Gwen Stefani and Simple Plan are slated to perform; Hilary Duff and Rob Schneider host.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC According to Jim

Jim (Jim Belushi) grows a mustache in response to a suggestion from an attractive delivery woman, Cheryl (Courtney Thorne-Smith) can't stand Jim's new facial fuzz and makes a change of her own in retaliation, dyeing her hair brown. Jim, however, loves the new look, so when Cheryl runs into the delivery woman, she asks her to give Jim some bad advice. Kimberly Williams-Paisley also stars in "The Mustache."

7 p.m. on 4-CBS NCIS

Gibbs (Mark Harmon) and his colleagues investigate the apparent suicide of a petty officer who had been hospitalized for a nervous breakdown and claimed she was being stalked. According to Ducky (David McCallum), however, this was no suicide. The team uncovers a love triangle involving her commanding officer, who was under investigation for taking kickbacks. Joe Spano guest stars in "Conspiracy Theory."

7 p.m. on 38-WB Gilmore Girls

Luke (Scott Patterson) is asked to do set construction for a school production of "Fiddler on the Roof" in "Jews and Chinese Food." He says yes, hoping it'll be a point of contact with Lorelai (Lauren Graham), who's designing the costumes. Rory and Marty (Alexis Bledel, Wayne Wilcox) have dinner with Logan (Matt Czuchy) and his friends, and Marty is miserable. And the bombshell Rory drops doesn't help his mood.

7 p.m. on 54-UPN One on One

Members of the band New Edition guest star as themselves in "Lock Blockin'." Flex (Flex Alexander) is in

7:30 p.m. on 54-UPN Eve

E! Entertainment Television personality Brooke Burke (guest starring as herself) agrees to wear a DivaStyle dress to a televised red-carpet event. Shelly (Eve) and her colleagues are thrilled... until fashion commentator Robert Verdi says uncomplimentary things about their creation on the air. Nick (Brian Hooks) finds his new piano teacher, Frances (Daphne Maxwell Reid), a tough taskmaster in "Lights, Camera, Face Crack!"

8 p.m. on 6-NBC Tommy Lee Goes to College

The typical adult who goes back to school doesn't live on campus or go out for marching band. But Tommy Lee is not the typical adult college student. This series follows the 42-year-old Motley Crue drummer and former Mr. Pamela Anderson as he immerses himself in the student experience at the University of Nebraska, from attending classes to giving his roommate advice on dealing with the opposite sex. And yes, he does try out for the band.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC Boston Legal

Founding partner Shirley Schmidt (Candice Bergen) rejoins the firm in an effort to restore order in "Schmidt Happens." A forceful sort — think Murphy Brown with a law degree — she is soon getting on Denny's (William Shatner) nerves. Lori (Monica Potter) represents a Sudanese man suing the United States for not taking action against atrocities in his homeland. Shore (James Spader) defends a man accused of killing his mother.

Wednesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

So You Think You Can Dance

The competition begins in earnest in this new two-hour episode. The thousands of wannabes have been winnowed down to 16, who will show their stuff for the judges tonight. Two are up for elimination this round, while the rest move on down the road to No. 1. Lauren Sanchez hosts.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

The Office

Kudos to the peacock for picking up this acquired taste of a series, a "mockumentary"-style comedy set in the offices of a Pennsylvania paper supply company, based on a British hit. If you missed its brief run earlier this year, here's your chance to get to know it before the new season starts; it's worth it. Four back-to-back episodes air tonight, starting with "Pilot," which introduces Steve Carell as terminally clueless manager Michael.

7 p.m. on ESPN2

Soccer

The U.S. men's national soccer team continues its 2006 World Cup qualifying schedule against Trinidad and Tobago live from East Hartford, Conn. Halfway through qualifying, coach Bruce Arena's squad is in excellent shape. At 4-1, they sit in second place in their group, one point behind Mexico. Their last game in early June produced a 3-0 win over Panama on goals by defender Carlos Bocanegra, forward Brian McBride and midfielder Landon Donovan.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Brat Camp

The second season — and first on a broadcast network — of the reality series comes to an end. The troubled teens reflect on their time at the Sage-Walk wilderness camp in Oregon, which for some was their first experience with structure and discipline. Will it be enough to turn them away from their acting-out ways? That depends on whether their parents have also learned something about what their kids need.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

The band Lifehouse plays at the Smallville prom, where strange things are happening. A nominee for prom queen has crashed her car into a kryptonite-filled ravine, and her spirit is inhabiting the bodies of Clark, Lana, Chloe and Lois (Tom Welling, Kristin Kreuk, Allison Mack, Erica Durance), causing them to behave bizarrely. Michael Rosenbaum also stars in "Spirit."

8 p.m. on 54-UPN

Veronica Mars

Little Randy Taylor a mad bomber? Say it isn't so. Jonathan Taylor Thomas ("Home Improvement") guest stars as a new Neptune High student, whom Veronica (Kristen Bell) puts on her list of suspicious characters as she investigates a series of bomb threats at school. Keith (Enrico Colantoni) drops a bomb of his own regarding his love life. Joey Lauren Adams also guest stars in "Weapons of Class Destruction."

Battle of the Network Reality Stars

The hit 1970s series "Battle of the Network Stars" is resurrected for the 21st century in this new incarnation featuring alumni of 16 reality shows. As with the original, they compete in a variety of physical events, including kayak races and the famous tug-of-war, and because this is a reality show, too, form alliances and vote one another off the island ... er, out of the game.

Kelly Hu

Lost

Sawyer (Josh Holloway) is feeling harassed by a wild boar in "Outlaws." While hunting for the animal, he and Kate (Evangeline Lilly) share some secrets. Charlie (Dominic Monaghan) hasn't been the same since his close call, which has Hurley and Sayid (Jorge Garcia, Naveen Andrews) worried. A connection between Sawyer and Jack (Matthew Fox) causes some shock waves.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

CSI: NY

The investigators are all over town in "Tri-Borough." Mac and Stella (Gary Sinise, Melina Kanakaredes) look into the electrocution death of a young man found in a Brooklyn subway station. Danny (Carminne Giovannazzo) works with Detective Kaile Maka (guest star Kelly Hu) on the murder of a Manhattan art gallery owner who may have sold a forged painting. Aiden and Flack (Vanessa Ferlito, Eddie Cahill) check out a construction worker's death in Queens.

Thursday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Joey

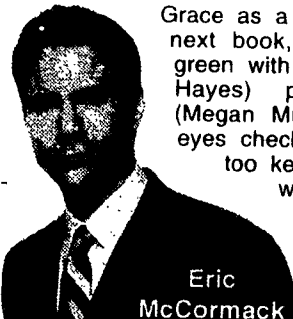

Joey (Matt LeBlanc) becomes smitten with his new neighbor, Sara (Madchen Amick), a photographer who proves immune to his usual pick-up lines and unimpressed by his celebrity. That doesn't mean she doesn't like him, only that she likes him better without the act. Alex's (Andrea Anders) husband (Matt Letscher) returns, but they find living together difficult. Drea de Matteo and Paulo Costanzo also star in "Joey and the Neighbor."

7:30 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

Will (Eric McCormack) suggests that Grace (Debra Messing) start seeing his therapist (guest star Sharon Stone). Not only do they hit it off, but the doc actually wants to use

Grace as a case study in her next book, which turns Will green with envy. Jack (Sean Hayes) persuades Karen (Megan Mullally) to get her eyes checked, but she's not too keen on the idea of wearing glasses. Shelley Morrison also stars in "The Blonde Leading the Blind."

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Everwood

Memories of his pre-Everwood past fill Andy's (Treat Williams) head when he accompanies Ephram (Gregory Smith) to New York for his audition. Still struggling with the question of whether to tell Ephram about Madison's (Sarah Lancaster) pregnancy, he's jolted into action when Madison turns up in Manhattan and runs into Ephram.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

ER

Thumbs down to the writers of "Refusal of Care" for squandering the talents of Oscar winner Louise Fletcher and Emmy winner Pat Carroll in a story that goes nowhere. They play elderly sisters who panhandle. One of them has injuries she claims are from a mugging, but Abby (Maura Tierney) suspects domestic abuse. And then ... ? Not much.

7:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
Hope & Faith

Robert Wagner plays Hope and Faith's dad in "9021-Uh-Oh." Thanksgiving has the family remembering the Turkey Day when Faith (Kelly Ripa) "borrowed" the home of Brian Austin Green ("Beverly Hills, 90210") so her judgmental mom would think she was doing well in Hollywood. She'd have pulled it off, too, if Green hadn't shown up. Cheryl Ladd appears in the flashback as the girls' mother. Faith Ford also stars.

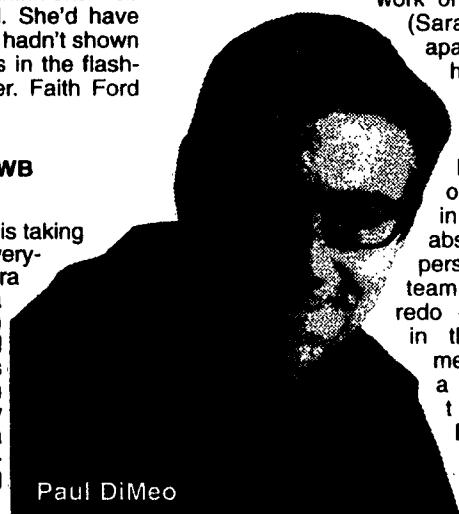

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Kyra (Scarlett Pomeroy) is taking her driving test, and everyone wants to help. Barbra Jean and Van (Melissa Peterman, Steve Howey) offer her some unusual advice. After she passes the test, Barbra Jean insists she sign a safety contract, and Reba (Reba McEntire) presents her with a cell Unaware that Josh (Ben Feldman) wants to dump his girlfriend (Dorian Brown), Fran counsels the girl on how to make him like her more.

In Focus

The venerable serial "All My Children" is about to get a new cast member, and you can get a taste of all the final candidates as series co-star Cameron Mathison hosts the ABC daytime special "Soap Star." Guess Who's Coming to Pine Valley? Thursday, Aug. 18.

The finalists have participated in the SoapNet series "I Wanna Be a Soap Star." The person chosen will land a 13-week contract to re-create a character who's previously been seen on the daytime drama.

If Jack Black can turn a bunch of disciplined young musicians into a very modern band in the movie "School of Rock," why can't a veteran of the group KISS do it in real life? He gives it a shot, anyway, as the unscripted VH1 series "Gene Simmons' Rock School" debuts Friday, Aug. 19.

Simmons goes to the United Kingdom to transform conservatively attired, classically trained youngsters into a rock band that will open a concert for the heavy-metal band Motorhead. A tall order? Oh, you bet.

7 p.m. and DSC
Journey of Life
This new three-part series dives deep — literally — into the origin and evolution of life, starting with "Seas of Life," which looks at the place where scientists believe it all began: the ocean. Immediately following, "Living Together" covers extinction and survival, then "Human Life" looks at the impact of evolution on Homo sapiens, aka us.

7 p.m. on HALL
Movie: Steve Martin's The Judge
Chris Noth stars in this 2001 drama as Paul Madriani, a lawyer called upon to help defend a judge (Edward James Olmos) facing a murder rap. His Honor is not Paul's favorite person — he even threw him in jail for contempt — but he can't resist the persuasive powers of the judge's wife (Sonia Braga); his own partner (Mark Blum); and the main defense counsel, an ex-prosecutor (Lolita Davidovich) who also happens to be his ex-lover.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS
Cold Case
Lilly (Kathryn Morris) delves into the 1991 murders of two Cambodian immigrants in "Who's Your Daddy?" A teenager's gold bracelet prompts the new couple tried to conceal their true identities in order to remain in the United States. Lilly tries to figure out who they actually were.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC
Law & Order
Four pedestrians are gunned down on a sidewalk in "All in the Family." Fontana and Green (Dennis Farina, Jesse L. Martin) discover one of the victims had ties to Russian organized crime and was helping the feds. The killers are found, but issues of jurisdiction and religion make things difficult for McCoy (Sam Waterston). Mercedes Ruehl guest stars.

9:05 p.m. on TBS
Movie: Bad Boys
Two mismatched Miami cops — one footloose and cocky, the other a hen-pecked family man — must switch identities to get the cooperation of the sole witness to a murder and reclaim a consignment of drugs stolen right from under their precinct's nose. Martin Lawrence, Will Smith and Tea Leoni star in this 1995 comedy.

9:15 p.m. on HBO
Boxing
A night of championship boxing in Rosemont, Ill., is highlighted by two-time former world champion Fernando Vargas against Javier Castillejo in a junior middleweight main event. Vargas (25-2, 22 KOs) is coming off a win in March after a 15-month layoff; Castillejo (58-5, 39 KOs) has won 21 of his last 22 bouts.
